You will recall that we bumped into each other walking down Fifth Avenue in New York a few weeks ago.

It is some time since we had the opportunity for a chat and, with no specific agenda in mind, I wondered if you might like to join my brother and me for lunch one day.

I will ask my office to be in touch to find a suitable date after the summer break.

Kind regards.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Aidan

It was a pleasure to see you and your brother in New York in May and I am grateful to you for taking the time to contact me in your letter of 30 June to suggest lunch.

At the moment we are in the middle of a by-election campaign and then it will be the recess, but I will be in touch to suggest a date shortly.

With kind regards.

Yours sincerely

Dear [Redacted]

Further to my earlier email, I am afraid Mr Hague is no longer available on 25 January. However, Mr Hague has asked me to enquire if Tuesday 9 February might be possible.

With kind regards

Lunch

Dear [Redacted]

Mr Hague has asked me to contact you with a view to trying to rearrange the lunch he was due to have with Mr Barclay and his brother on 8 September. By chance would Monday 25 January be possible?

I will look forward to hearing from you.

With kind regards
