THE PAGE WHERE YOU TELL BRITAIN WHAT YOU THINK

Our 'thick' voters will ditch arrogant Bryant

WHO the hell does MP Chris Bryant think he is, saying Brits are too thick to understand what a referendum on the EU constitution is all about?

Hasn't he got the nerve to realize it was the same great British public who put him where he is?

I am anti-EU but I feel the only fair way to decide this issue is to go to the people. Such a decision should be left to Parliament - this country is not a democracy.

CHRIS BRYANT and other lefts like him should be recognized that they are voted in to do one bidding - not whatever they want.

We need a campaign to save our great nation before it is too late.

ANDREW GIBSON
Wokingham, Berks

HOW many Chris Bryants are there thick as you? A referendum on the EU constitution was only put to a vote in 1975.

No things he's good at complicated stuff but he must be getting close to losing the people who put him in his job.

TRICKY TRICK

LABOUR member Chris Bryant is a perfect example of what happens to someone when they are given a little power.

All of a sudden he learns how and the rest of us are left with the burden of voters and their understanding of the bigger picture.

THE BIG ISSUE

LABOUR MP Chris Bryant says the public should not get a vote on the EU constitution because they are too 'thick' to understand it. Readers were outraged by the insult and called him arrogant.

OUTRAGE - Arrogant Bryant

Just please how much contempt he has for us all. I'm sure the leading is correct - and at the next election Bryant might find himself not being the "thick" people again.

CLARE WOODWARD
Shepperton, Bucks
I'd like to remind Chris Bryant that he was elected to represent his constituents' views, not his own.

MISS MARR
Wokingham, Berks
EURO PARADOX Chris Bryant claims that the electorate are brighter than he thinks at the moment when they don't vote for him. We may be thick, Chris, but not that thick.

ANDREW GIBSON
Wokingham, Berks
THE only thick voters are those who put Labour back in for a consecutive third time. But many are retained voters - and hopefully they won't vote Labour, with its arrogant MP, Sir Chris Bryant, at the next election.

ALL PEASONS
Wokingham, Berks
THE attitude of MP Chris Bryant is arrogant stupidity. Will he tell him his job at the next election.

Just your information Bryant, the electorate don't just want a referendum on Europe, we demand it to be the only way to stop Blair setting out on the Downside and Troon.

ANDREW GIBSON
Wokingham, Berks
AFTER nearly 1200 years and having survived two world wars, the UK's sovereignty will be given away by Blair - and nobody is making any attempt to stop it.

We understand what's going on, all right - we have to stand up for ourselves before we are betrayed.

JOSEY COOPER
Shepperton, Bucks
THAT proposition, described as a referendum, is a Liberal Unionist Chris Bryant is the face of the New Labour Government.

He will soon be going on the very people he thinks are stupid and telling them to vote for him. How hypocritical the arrogant man!

Bryant is helping to give away what our last bid loses. What he is demanding, maybe one of his constituents would be good enough to explain this one to him.

JOANNE WOODWARD
Shepperton, Bucks
CHRIS BRYANT has really said what Tony Blair must have been thinking long since and the words to come out with.

You don't have to be a genius to work out that we don't want a European army at our throats set by Brussels.

The course the Union steps in and declares that union is obvious, the better.

How much longer do we have to put up with those arrogant so-called "leaders" who are only interested in themselves?

Mr Blair is a master for merely giving away so much of our heritage and our future - and should be driven from the Tower.

ANDREW GIBSON
Wokingham, Berks
If you are suspicious in

LABOUR officials have not allowed things to be said because of an EU referendum.

If they allowed it will be the end of the world. They should be allowed to say what they think.

When will this Gov realize we are an island. I think Tony Blair's Gov must have realized it by now.

JODIE'S LOW JEANS ARE WAIST OF TIME

LOW-CUT jeans look great on the right person. But nothing looks worse than when the waist is hanging halfway down the legs - so when Jodie Marsh went back to 'The Thick of It'...

I would have to say that it is a low opinion wearing the trousers like that and they fall down. It just looks so ridiculous.

DAVID JENNINGS

I WAS disappointed to see Jodie Marsh in an Evening Top during the Wales v England rugby match.

With his father being the Prime Minister of Wales and the monarchy representative Great Britain, I feel he could have been more neutral - or even worn the Union Jack.

CHRISTOPHER LEE

I LAUGHED to read in The Sun that Jodie Marsh was wearing the outfit of her friend Victoria Beckham. It is on the lookout for someone with class and intelligence.

Are they the qualities he has? Well, Victoria is well out of it.

JIMMY LOU is entirely his right on the Mary Whitehouse's case. The shops have been to full justice since the beginning of October. And each year it seems to be the same.
